Interdisciplinary collaboration & curriculum development

Arts Integration

- While with Dance Exchange (2011-2019), I helped develop and grow Cassie Meador's Moving Field Guide program. Created in partnership with the US Forest Service, these workshops, artist and teacher trainings, and residencies bring together dance artists and environmental educators to help people learn more about the places (and science) around them. I developed camps, artist and teacher training, and contributed to the written curriculum for grade levels 3-5.
- As an artist educator with Jacob's Pillow, I have been involved in their Curriculum in Motion program- which brings choreographers into classrooms to partner with teachers to animate and integrate movement with curriculum. I have led arts integration trainings with Berkshire-based educators, and have helped create and lead summer STEAM camps for elementary-aged children- collaborating across different artistic practices, science learning, and outdoor survivalist skills to learn about Berkshire ecology.

LGBT Community Health and Wellness workshops

- Through my body of work, Growing Our Own Gardens, I have been cultivating partnerships with arts and LGBTQ+ organizations to use performance and engagements as platforms for community reflection and community building. In DC, I have partnered with the Rainbow History Project to animate their guided walking tours, leading Queer History Walks that share historical moments and personal stories connected to specific neighborhoods that result in small dances made from our discoveries; I have partnered with Dance Exchange, Dance Place, the DC Center and the Human Rights Commission of the City of Rockville to create and lead a series of workshops on intergenerational LGBTQ+ community building. I carry these experiences into continued work with the DC Center and the Rainbow History Project, and with the Rainbow Seniors of Berkshire County and the Live Out Loud Conference.
- In fall 2019, I began leading Mindful Movement: a dance class held at the Whitman Walker Health Center (the local LGBTQ+ health center) to connect people (particularly patients and caregivers) to different approaches to health and wellness and deepen relationships between those who are a part of this vital community center.

Campus and Community Connections

- Through my work with Texas Christian University, I have direct experience in collaboratively co-creating informal, experiential curriculum for training artists and individuals interested in dance and community engagement. Over the span of two and a half years, I created points of intersection between the departments of Classical and Contemporary Dance, Women & Gender Studies, Theater, Anthropology, and the Office of Community Engagement; I deepened relationships between TCU, the Refugee Services of Texas, Artes de la Rosa, FurtherDance Fort Worth, and a number of local community members. These experiences catalyzed cross-campus collaborations that extended beyond the funding period of the project, engaged hundreds of people in dancing, and helped create an on-going internship and dance program between the School for Classical and Contemporary Dance and Refugee Services of Texas.

- I am currently in partnership with Colby College Theater & Dance in a multi-year performance project that strengthens connections between Colby College and community partners, develops community-engaged arts practitioners within Colby students and faculty and community members, and creates performances that celebrate and complicate questions of belonging, history, and place.

ARTISTIC BODY OF WORK

As most of the work that I find myself in involves a more non-traditional, horizontally structured format for making, in which performers are also makers and visa versa, I have organized this section of work chronologically and delineated what role(s) I have assumed in the project.

Current Projects

ReWritten (working title) (Co-Director, Choreographer, Performer)

Co-directed, created and performed with Tom Truss, this work-in-progress explores queerness, creative process, and LGBTQ+ history through the intimate relationship between literary figures (and queer icons?) Herman Melville and Nathaniel Hawthorne. Recent research suggests that these two were intimate- if not lovers- at a time with homosexuality was punishable by law; yet their their work- and their little-explored-influence on each other- have become part of the English fiction canon. This dance theater duet is involving: Diane Samuels (visual artist), Roma Flowers (projection/lighting design), Katherine Stubbs (American literature scholar and thinking partner), Larry Burke (filmmaker and documentarian), Jeremy Winchester (set/lighting design), Rudy Ramirez (staging director and co-dramaturg) and Jake Blount (fiddlist, vocalist).

Growing Our Own Gardens (Director, Choreographer, Performer)

An iterative performance project rooted in queer world-making, this body of work surfaces and celebrates the stories, struggles, and possibilities of intergenerational queer communities through dance, spoken word, drag, queer club culture, and local community participation. As the director and choreographer, I am currently in conversation with partners in north Texas about future work. Already a work-in-progress, this solo-then-duet was originally performed at the AIDS Outreach Center Benefit concert at Texas Christian University. Original lighting design by Roma Flowers; original sound score and text developed by Matthew Cumbie. February 2019, Texas Christian University; Fort Worth, TX. The duet version was performed with Darryl Pilate at the Big Rig Dance Co-Op. August 2019, University of Texas-Arlington; Arlington, TX. Commissioned by Texas Christian University, with support from the Embrey Family Foundation.

Native Intelligence|Innate Intelligence (Performer)

Choreographed by Christopher K. Morgan for Christopher K. Morgan & Artists, Native Intelligence|Innate Intelligence is a two-part dance performance incorporating contemporary dance, hula, Hawaiian chant, and original live music. In solo work, Native Intelligence, Morgan investigates how he maintains his root cultural identity when separated from ancestral land. Innate Intelligence is an ensemble work that uses movement, scenery and music to examine the human instinct to connect to one another. The two parts create a comprehensive picture of the complexities contemporary Native people navigate and move fluidly between, and invites audiences to reflect on their own identity, perception of Native people, and instinct.

Queer Constellations (Co-Director, Choreographer)

Inspired by the stories and experiences of 80-year-old Andy Torres, Queer Constellations creates a kaleidoscope of images, people and places to ask: what stories are held in our minds, hearts and bodies? And how do we pass those on? Part documentary, part dance film, this docudance reflects on intergenerational queer community building and touches on the importance and necessity of connections between LGBTQ+ people of different ages. Queer Constellations is co-directed by Matthew Cumbie and Jessica Hale. It has been shown at Opening Door Dance Theater's Virtual Concert: October 2020, Texas State University; San Marcos, TX. Created with support from the DC Commission on the Arts and Humanities. Link here.

Keepers (Choreographer)

A short dance film created in collaboration with the Local Motion Project Youth Ensemble, Keepers explores the people, places and things in our life that move us to take care. Filmed at Jones Point Park in Alexandria, VA, the film uses the metaphor of the Jones Point Lighthouse as a portal to reflect on the ripple effect of caregiving in our communities. Choreographic direction and film editing by Matthew Cumbie; music by Keith Fleming and Moby; performances by Local Motion Project Youth Ensemble. October 2020; Alexandria, VA. Commissioned by Local Motion Project. Link here.

Minor & Major Arcana (Choreographer, Performer)

Inspired by the daily humdrum of life in isolation, Minor & Major Arcana brings together original poetry and choreography (and home-grown herbs) to reflect on navigating a pandemic in domestic partnership. Co-created and performed by Matthew Cumbie and Tyler French, and performed as a site-responsive installation in UpRooted Dance's Backyard Dances. July 2020, the front yard of Keira Hart-Mendoza; Bethesda, MD.

Unicorn Hair + Dragon Heartstring TELL THE TRUTH (Choreographer, Performer)

Building on a history of improvisational performance work together, this new improvised performance created and performed by Betsy Miller and Matthew Cumbie is a part of the Never Before, Never Again Improvisational Arts Festival at Triskelion Arts. January 2020, Triskelion Arts; Brooklyn, NY.

2019

A Careful Carry (Choreographer)

Ensemble work for Moving Body Company. Performance information forthcoming. November 2019, Columbia College; Columbia, SC. Commissioned by Moving Body Company.

...in the most generous way (Director)

Improvisational performance created for varying number of performers, with long-distance rehearsal process. Performance information forthcoming. August 2019, University of Texas-Arlington; Arlington, TX. Commissioned by Big Rig Dance.

Ferocious Beauty: Genome (excerpt)(Performer)

A multi-year collaboration directed by Liz Lerman with geneticists that explores the science of our beginnings- from origin stories to how genes carry information over time. This excerpt was performed by Dance Exchange. June 2019, Dance Place; Washington, DC.

Still Crossing | OAC: Texas (Co-Director, Repetiteur)

Originally choreographed by Liz Lerman and commissioned as part of the BiCentennial celebration of the Statue of Liberty in 1986, this iteration was reset and recontextualized with students at Texas Christian University and local community members through Organizing Artists for Change: Texas, an initiative partnering with TCU, Refugee Services of Texas and Artes de la Rosa to co-create an informal, experiential curriculum for training socially-engaged artists and strengthening the network of artists and individuals in north Texas advancing change initiatives through artmaking. Original sound score. March 2019, Texas Christian University; Fort Worth, TX. Funded, in part, by the Embrey Family Foundation.

Consent + Coffee, Curriculum in Motion (Co-choreographer, Performer)

A duet choreographed and performed through Jacob's Pillow Curriculum in Motion- a two-week residency program of Jacob's Pillow in partnership with local schools to bring dance into classrooms to animate and support other subject areas. Performed as part of the Pause-in-the-Process, a works-in-progress showing of student work and work from artist educators. February 2019, Monument Mountain Regional High School; Great Barrington, MA.

Entrances and Echoes (excerpts)(Performer)

An improvisational evening-length work, distilled down to a 12-minute excerpt, that closely examines the relationship between shared experiences and shared spaces. Directed by Annie Kloppenberg. Performed by Annie Kloppenberg, Matthew Cumbie, and Rachel Boggia. Sound score by Jordin Chiolis. Performed as part of Maine Moves, November 2018. Portland Ballet Theater; Portland, ME.

Not Yet Arrived (redux)(Director, Performer)

An improvisational duet that explores embodied generational memory and intimacy. Scored and performed by Matthew Cumbie and Sam Horning. Original sound score by Matthew

Cumbie. Texas Dance Improvisation Festival, October 2018. Texas Woman's University; Denton, TX. Commissioned by the Texas Dance Improvisation Festival

The (still perfectly fine) adventures of Unicorn Hair + Dragon Heartstring
(Co-Choreographer, Performer)

A collaborative improvisational duet, both poignantly sad and delightfully whimsical, that travels backwards and forwards in time to look at the devices from our childhood that help us make sense of our place in the world and grapple with the things we lose along the way. Site-adaptive iteration as part of Art on the Square. Original sound design and text design by Betsy Miller and Matthew Cumbie. Created and performed by Matthew Cumbie and Betsy Miller. August 2018, Derby Square; Salem, MA. Commissioned by the Salem Arts Council

Last Dance (Co-director, Performer)

A dance film that honors and marks the closing of Town Danceboutique, a premiere LGBTQ+ night club and community space. Performed by Matthew Cumbie and Sam Horning, and co-directed and choreographed by Matthew Cumbie and filmmaker Ben Carver. June 2018, Town Danceboutique; Washington, DC. Link here.

Celebrating 20 years (Co-director)

A constellation of performances and activities to engage local communities and animate the Dance Exchange building, inside and out, to mark and celebrate Dance Exchange's presence in Takoma Park for 20 years. Co-organized and directed by Matthew Cumbie and Sam Horning. June 2018, Dance Exchange; Takoma Park, MD.

Dog Dances (Co-facilitator)

An iterative excerpt from Dance Exchange's Hallelujah: In Praise of Pets and their People, by Liz Lerman, that brings people together with their dogs to co-create and perform a social dance. Choreographed by Elizabeth Johnson; co-facilitated by Sam Horning and Matthew Cumbie. Commissioned by and performed at the Moss Center for Arts, October 2017. Virginia Tech University; Blacksburg, VA.

Growing Our Own Gardens: a queer world, unfolding (Director, Performer)

An iterative performance project rooted in queer world-making, this body of work surfaces and celebrates the stories, struggles, and possibilities of intergenerational queer communities through dance, spoken word, drag, queer club culture, and local community participation. This DC-iteration partnered with Dance Place, the Rainbow History Project, the DC Center, and the Human Rights Commission of the City of Rockville. Original sound score by Stowe Nelson and Micah Salkind. February 2018, Dance Place; Washington, DC. Funded by the National Endowment for the Arts, the Arcus Foundation, and Dance Exchange.

Untitled, Curriculum in Motion (Co-choreographer, Performer)

An improvisational duet scored and performed by Matthew Cumbie and Margot Greenlee, supported by and through Jacob's Pillow Curriculum in Motion- a two-week residency program of Jacob's Pillow in partnership with local schools to bring dance into classrooms to animate and support other subject areas. Performed as part of the Pause-in-the-Process, a works-in-progress showing of student work and work from artist-educators. February 2018, Monument Mountain High School; Great Barrington, MA.

What Brings Us Home (Choreographer)

Connecting to the campus' common theme and explore issues of justice within the dance department study body. Choreographed by Matthew Cumbie, collaboratively created with and performed by students from Texas State University. October 2017, Opening Door Dance Theater. Texas State University; San Marcos, TX. Commissioned by Texas State University

Untitled (Co-director, Co-choreographer, Performer)

Inspired by the total solar eclipse that travels across the United States in 2017, and included in a program of arts, cultural and sciences by the National Park Service to celebrate and reflect on the total solar eclipse as it happens in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. Sound design by Matthew Cumbie. August 2017, Total Solar Eclipse; Clingman's Dome, Great Smoky Mountain National Park, NC. Commissioned by the National Parks Service with NASA; funded, in part, by the National Endowment for the Arts

Growing Our Own Gardens: a solo experiment (Choreographer, Performer)

Building on years of research connected to embodied LGBTQ+ histories, this solo juxtaposes personal queer experiences alongside national moments and movements to engage audiences on a personal and literal journey through a salon-performance. Choreographed and performed by Matthew Cumbie; curated by Courtney Harris and Charli Brissey as part of 20 Rue Jacob, a mobile performance series that engages local queer-identified artists in site-responsive performance. July 2017; Mount Rainier, MD.

The (still perfectly fine) adventures of Unicorn Hair + Dragon Heartstring (Co-choreographer, Performer)

A collaborative improvisational duet, both poignantly sad and delightfully whimsical, that travels backwards and forwards in time to look at the devices from our childhood that help us make sense of our place in the world and grapple with the things we lose along the way. Original sound design and text design by Betsy Miller and Matthew Cumbie. Created and performed by Matthew Cumbie and Betsy Miller. July 2017, Bates Dance Festival; Lewiston, ME. Also included as part of the Somerville SomDance Fest, June 2017, SomDance Fest; Somerville, MA. Commissioned for the Bates Dance Festival, with support from the New England Foundation for the Arts, and commissioned by the Somerville Arts Council

Bricks and Bones: A performance series in response to the erasure of Black lives and communities in Dallas, Texas, and the movements to recover, rebuild and honor those lost histories (excerpts): a sermonic movement (Co-director, Performer)

Excerpts from a multi-year project co-directed by Cassie Meador and Paloma McGregor, and performed by Dance Exchange artists and local community members. An intergenerational investigation of how race shapes the landscape around us, and included as part of programming at the Old Cambridge Baptist Church to spark conversations on racial equity and personal and organizational responsibility and accountability. Original sound score designed by Stowe Nelson. June 2017, Old Cambridge Baptist Church; Cambridge, MA.

From Burning to Telling (Co-director, Performer)

Explores ideas of legibility, both from a scientific perspective and from an improvisational movement and storytelling practice. This work-in-progress was incubated at Dance Exchange, and shared informally in partnership with the Department of Theatre, Dance, and Performance Studies at the University of Maryland-College Park. February 2017, University of Maryland-College Park, College Park, MD.

2016

Dream Within a Dream: Madness (Choreographer)

An immersive theatre/dance performance that explores the life and writings of Edgar Allen Poe. Directed by Doug Bradshaw and Jennifer Schwed. September and October 2016, Torpedo Factory Arts Center, Alexandria, VA.

1, or 6, Moments in our Garden (Choreographer, Performer)

An exploration on distillation and fragmentation, based on the work in progress Growing Our Own Gardens. July 2016, Dance Place, Washington, DC. Commissioned for the Kitchen Sink Fest.

Glacial Drift (Performer)

An improvisational exploration of physical site and figurative place, as part of an installation at the National Building Museum. Directed by Maida Withers. July 2016, National Building Museum, Washington, DC.

Growing Our Own Gardens (Director, Performer)

This work-in-progress brings together dance, poetry, and drag to explore the LGBTQ movements that have brought us to present day, questioning the role of intergenerational collaboration, and positioning us to look at where we are headed. Original sound design by Stowe Nelson. June 2016, Dance Complex, Cambridge, MA. Commissioned by the Queer Voices Festival and Dance Complex.

Ritual Cycle #3: In Good Company (Co-choreographer, Performer)

A deepening into the collaborative process between Jessie Laurita-Spanglet and Matthew Cumbie, this iteration builds on our exploration of the choreographic process as ritual. Sound score by Mike Wall. Created and performed by Matthew Cumbie and Jessie Laurita-Spanglet as part of a larger work, Alongside, by Jessie Laurita-Spanglet. April 2016, John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts. Washington, DC.

The (still perfectly fine) adventures of Unicorn hair + Dragon heartstring (Co-choreographer, Performer)

A collaborative improvisational duet, both poignantly sad and delightfully whimsical, that travels backwards and forwards in time to look at the devices from our childhood that help us make sense of our place in the world and grapple with the things we lose along the way.

Original sound design and text design by Betsy Miller and Matthew Cumbie. April 2016, AS220, Providence, RI. Commissioned for the Modern Movements Festival at AS220

Selfie (Choreographer, Performer)

A dance film choreographed and performed by Matthew Cumbie, collaboratively created with filmmaker Ben Carver. March 2016, ULine Arena; Washington, DC.

Not Yet Here (work in progress)(Director, Performer)

A part of a larger work in progress directed by Matthew Cumbie, this improvisational trio weaves together dance, poetry, and story telling to explore what Jose Esteban Muñoz refers to as queer futurity, and was selected to be presented in the Never Before, Never Again festival at Triskellion Arts. Original sound score by Stowe Nelson. Performed by Matthew Cumbie, Tyler French, Danté Brown, Jessica Hale. January 2016, Triskelion Arts, Brooklyn, NY.

Bricks and Bones: A performance series in response to the erasure of Black lives and communities in Dallas, Texas, and the movements to recover, rebuild and honor those lost histories. (Project lead, Performer)

A multi-year project co-directed by Cassie Meador and Paloma McGregor, we collaboratively weave dance, song, and storytelling into an intergenerational investigation of how race shapes the landscape around us. Original sound score designed by Stowe Nelson. Performed by Dance Exchange and Dallas community members. Site-based performances at: Southern Methodist University, the African American Museum, and Saint Paul's United Methodist Church. Premiere November 2015 at South Dallas Cultural Center, Dallas, TX. Funded by the Embrey Family Foundation

Still Crossing (Co-choreographer, Performer)

An iconic work that explores migration and journeys choreographed by Liz Lerman that integrates community engagement throughout process and performance. Originally commissioned as part of the BiCentennial celebration of the Statue of Liberty. Reset as part of New Hampshire Ave: This Is a Place To..., directed by Cassie Meador, as a site-adaptive work. Reset and performed by Dance Exchange artists Cassie Meador, MK Abadoo, Matthew Cumbie, Shula Strassfeld and Amanda Newman; performed by Summer Institute participants and community members. Original sound score. July 2015, New Hampshire Avenue, Takoma Park, MD. Funded, in part, by the National Endowment for the Arts

REVIEWS OF SCHOLARLY/CREATIVE ACTIVITIES

"...This is one of the few performances I have been to the last few years where not a single person was dashing for the door during the curtain call, attempting to beat the crowd to the parking garage post-football game style. Instead, the audience danced together on stage and the post-performance reception was packed with people discussing what they had seen, felt, and learned. The program promises future iterations and evolutions of this performance. If you are lucky enough to catch it, you're sure to leave with a sense of warmth and hope."

- Move Your Story, <http://moveyourstory.org>, 03.14.2018

"1, or 6, Moments From Our Gardens, concept and performance by Matthew Cumbie and Sam Horning, began as a vivid retelling of distinct memories for numbers one through three, and as the piece progressed the memories for the higher numbers became less specific. The balancing, headstands, and pedestrian feel to the piece was refreshing. The sixth moment, "we arrived but just for a minute," felt poetic without being saccharine, and suited the performance of the two men."

- Rick Westerkemp, <http://dcmetrotheaterarts.com>, 01.08.2016

"I arrived early to see their (Dance Exchange Summer Institute participants) morning class taught by resident artist Matthew Cumbie: lush movement phrases warmed up the dancers' joints in improvisatory exercises, both individually and in trios. In class together the dancers appeared like morphing and swirling clay figures, supple and pliable, that spoke and laughed and touched one another. Cues from Cumbie ranged from those that sounded like a yoga lesson- “the more you release into the earth the more the earth gives back to you”- to those that could have been spoken by a science teacher: “this is your own research.” The dancing that appeared was a blend of risk-taking with reliability, a combination of uncertainty and wisdom that was fascinating to watch. Phrases became kinetic statements about spontaneity and interactivity, dependence and competence.”

- Kate Mattingly, <http://pinklineproject.com>, 07.14.2012

“[About thinking seeing standing feeling object of attention] Crashing into each other with a sassy finesse, the pair employed turbulent partnering, overt sexual gestures and an eye-locking connection to create a terse but steamy climate. Captivating movers both, their raw but slick styles exudes a ‘downtown, aesthetic, but they hark from Texas Woman’s University. Let’s hope we see more of them.”
